REMEMBERING THE FALLEN

Kristen McNaughton, left, and Susan Penley share a quiet moment of remembrance in the snow at the Field of Crosses Memorial Project along Memorial Drive in Calgary on Thursday. Penley's uncle, Pilot Officer Keith Thomas Bielby, fought in the Second World War and was killed on Aug. 17, 1944. Bielby Lake in northern Saskatchewan was named in his honour. ROBSON FLETCHER/METRO

Transit smart-card system delayed

Connect no more.
City bows out of contract after repeated delays and struggles with Spanish firm

Transit riders, don't do away with those coin purses just yet.

The City of Calgary announced Thursday it has terminated a contract with Spanish group Telvent after repeated delays and struggles with trial runs of its Connect smart-card payment system.

The process to find a new system and put it through the paces will see the introduction of an e-payment system on buses and LRT delayed "at least a year," according to Calgary Transit planning manager Neil McKendrick.

Initial plans

- The city originally awarded its smart-card contract to Telvent in December 2010 and had hoped to roll out the Connect card in time for the Calgary Stampede centennial in July.
- The renewable card was supposed to be able to be loaded with time or trip amounts, as well as a cash value, and be topped up online, at city hall cashiers and transit customer-service centres. Disposable cards were also in the works.

"We're very sorry," McKendrick added. "We had very high expectations for this system to really provide another level of convenience for our customers (and) perhaps attract new customers.... We'll bring in a new system as soon as we can."

Calgary Transit estimates $500,000 in unrecoverable expenses were lost during development of the Connect system. In all, $7 million had been budgeted for the project, but McKendrick wouldn't rule out the possibility Thursday of going back to city council for more money.

Ald. Diane Colley-Urquhart, chair of the transportation committee, said she believes the city made the right move and the timeline for establishing a new system is less important than finding one that works.

"This company (Telvent) failed to deliver time after time with this smart card and it's extremely disappointing," she said.

Other cities, like Toronto, have successfully implemented transit smart-card payment options, but McKendrick said finding a platform that is compatible with existing city systems will be tricky.

"You don't buy these off the shelf," he said.

Mayor Naheed Nenshi issued a statement claiming the city has sent a "clear message" to its suppliers that they must meet expectations and standards outlined in contracts.

Telvent did not return inquiries for comment Thursday.

Crime

Janitor accused of sexually assaulting student

Police say they have charged a relief janitor after a young girl was sexually assaulted in a secluded area at a Calgary public school.

According to acting Staff Sgt. Stephen Johnston, investigators received a complaint of inappropriate touching on Oct. 24 after a seven-year-old girl described an ordeal to her parents.

On Wednesday, charges were laid against the 62-year-old suspect.

The Calgary Board of Education and Calgary police both refrained from disclosing the school where the incident occurred to protect the victim.

But Johnston confirmed the janitor had been working there for a short period of time and had been called in to relieve staff at other local schools in the past — those locations are also not being disclosed.

"Anybody with information about this (alleged assault) or any other incident can call us," Johnston said.

The CBE has posted contact information for child-abuse support agencies on its website, but spokesman Richard Peter said the investigation into the incident, made public Thursday, is being left in the hands of police.

"Every single employee, volunteer and contractor is required to complete a police check before starting their involvement with the Calgary Board of Education," Peter added.

He said board policy dictates that all staff must notify administration if they have been charged with a crime, but he did not comment on whether the accused janitor has been suspended or fired.

The accused is scheduled to appear in court Dec. 19.

Fewer candidates may mean fewer voters

Ward race. Political pundits say aldermanic contests may be more interesting to watch

KATIE TURNER
katie.turner@metronews.ca

With Mayor Naheed Nenshi tossing his hat in the race once again, political experts say the voter engagement seen in 2010 may not be the case next year.

Nenshi confirmed Wednesday that he will seek a second term in the mayor's chair.

Mount Royal University associate professor of policy studies Lori Williams said his decision will likely mean few legitimate candidates will step forward, and fewer voters will show up to the polls. "You'll get a lot of people saying, 'Well he's going to win anyway, why bother?'" she said.

Ald. Andre Chabot decided not to challenge the mayor after learning of his decision to run for re-election.

"I don't anticipate we're going to have as high a voter turnout this time, and that actually would probably work in his favour," said Chabot Wednesday.

Political blogger with CalgaryPolitics.com Joey Oberhoffner said with a potential lack of challengers for mayor, contests for aldermanic seats may be more interesting.

"I don't anticipate that anyone with any strong political experience locally is going to step up and run against the mayor," he said. "That said, that does open up the possibility of a lot of people going.... The mayor is only one of 15 seats on council."

WITH FILES FROM ROBSON FLETCHER

2013 election

- Mayor Nenshi and his council colleagues were elected on Oct. 18, 2010.
- The 2013 election will be held on Oct. 21.
- Voter turnout in the 2010 election was estimated at around 53 per cent — up from around 33 per cent in the 2007 election.

Report. Sloppy hiring at Edmonton hospital led to mistakes in cancer tests

Alberta's health watchdog says slipshod management led to the hiring of a pathologist who misdiagnosed biopsies for cancer patients at an Edmonton hospital.

Dr. John Cowell of the Health Quality Council says there was no thorough hiring process in place at the Royal Alexandra Hospital when a temporary pathologist was hired a year ago.

It was subsequently found the pathologist either underreported the level of cancer or missed cancer altogether in 159 samples.

Cowell also says there were problems with 31 tissue specimens in the lab at Calgary's Rockyview Hospital because the testing machine did not abort the test if the technician made a mistake such as loading in the wrong fluid levels.

Cowell says until the machine is improved, technicians need to adopt safeguards such as double-checking each other's work. THE CANADIAN PRESS

No patients harmed

The government has said no patients were seriously harmed as a result of the mistakes.

CPA opens electric charging stations

Calgary's parking authority is getting charged up for a new initiative in one of its city parkades.

The organization has installed two electric-vehicle charging stations at 322-9th Ave. S.W. The stations are complimentary for customers with a paid parking session.

"The CPA is continually looking at how to offer additional services to our customers," said general manager Troy McLeod in a release.

If you want to use the charging station, simply park your electric car in the designated stalls and plug the charge connector into your vehicle's port. METRO

WITHOUT A NENSHI CHALLENGER, IS A ROBOT REVOLUTION NEXT?

IN DEFENCE OF Mike Morrison
calgary@metronews.ca

This week, the worst-kept secret since I sat my family down to tell them that I was bald was revealed.

Just weeks after his two-year anniversary, Mayor Naheed Nenshi announced that he would be seeking re-election in 2013.

Over the next couple of months, people will undoubtedly say, "Why would anyone run against Nenshi?" Which is a pretty fair statement. As of last year, our mayor had the highest approval rating of any major-city mayor in Canada. Running for mayor in 2013 would be more of an uphill battle than trying to drive up 14th Street NW immediately after a dusting of snow. So why would anyone want to run against him?

Well, because democracy is awesome and, more importantly, we columnists need something to talk about.

It may seem like a long time ago, but the last municipal election made for amazing fodder for people who are often looking for content.

For better or worse, we regularly depend on politicians to inspire our creativity.

While some weeks are plentiful — specifically whenever Danielle Smith tries to relate to this city's impoverished — most weeks I spend hours upon hours scanning my Twitter account, hoping that an alderman, MLA or MP will say something that I can lampoon.

Remember when Barb Higgins essentially lost the campaign during a live interview on Breakfast Television? I'm still making jokes about that. And, quite frankly, living in a Conservative stronghold makes Calgary's municipal elections the most exciting thing to vote for since Canadian Idol.

I'd also like to see someone run because choice is always good. Maybe it's because I watched RoboCop too many times as a kid, but Nenshi's huge approval rating has always made me a little nervous.

I think he's a nice person and I understand that, for many, he's changed Calgary for the better.

However, any time anyone has nearly unanimous approval, I can only assume that a giant robot revolution is right around the corner.

To be clear, it's not that I've seen our mayor secretly store large pieces of metal in a warehouse or anything like that. It's because I get nervous when people seem to have unequivocal love for any politician, unless it's in musical form, like Evita.

Over the next couple of months, I'm sure more than a few names will begin to appear on the ballot for 2013, and I hope that they do. If there is one thing that Nenshi has proven, it's that he's always up for a challenge, and after this week's U.S. election, who doesn't love a potential photo finish?

Mike Morrison is the bald head behind Mike's Bloggity Blog. You can also find him on Twitter at @mikesbloggity.

Father's passion lives on in Field of Crosses memorial

In remembrance. Daughter of former Poppy Fund head carrying on tradition started by her late father, George Bittman

LISA WILTON
lisa.wilton@metronews.ca

Laura Vanderkruk has mixed emotions every time she walks through the rows of white Remembrance Day crosses temporarily on display next to Memorial Drive.

The Field of Crosses Memorial Project, located west of the Centre Street Bridge in the northwest, was close to the heart of her late father, George Bittman.

"This was such a big part of his passion," she says with a smile.

Bittman, a well-respected veterans'-rights advocate and former head of the Calgary Poppy Fund, went missing in Florida last December and was found dead a few days later. It's believed the 72-year-old fell off his sailboat and drowned.

Vanderkruk says she is committed to keeping her father's vision alive and has been working long hours to ensure the Field of Crosses is as fitting a memorial for southern Alberta's fallen soldiers as he wanted it to be.

"I want to be a part of this for him," she says. "I'm proud we're continuing this because he started it."

With the one-year anniversary of her father's death drawing near, Vanderkruk says she is trying to focus instead on the Field of Crosses project. But she admits it's not always easy.

"Nov. 1 was an iffy day because of the emotions," says Vanderkruk, who presided over a special sunrise ceremony at the memorial crosses location that was dedicated to Bittman.

"I was nervous about starting all this. But I want him to be proud. I'm sure he's proud of all of us because we've worked so hard."

Nov. 11. Our day to remember

Calgarians can honour our veterans at several events around the city on Sunday.

• Family-orientated Remembrance Day ceremony, Nov. 11, 10:30 to 11:15 a.m.

This brief, informal ceremony is held outside at the Aero Space Museum, so dress for the weather. Afterward, the museum will be open to the public for the price of a small donation.

• Military Museums' Remembrance Day service, Nov. 11, 10:45 a.m. to noon

At Calgary's largest ceremony, bins will be on site for those wishing to donate food to the Veterans' Food Bank. Cash donations to the museum are also welcome. Dress warmly and arrive early, since parking is limited.

• CFL Western Division semifinal game, Nov. 11, 2:30 p.m.

The CFL and Veterans Affairs Canada will host an opening ceremony to honour veterans before the Calgary Stampeders and the Saskatchewan Roughriders face off in their Western semifinal game.

• Calgary Zoo honours veterans, Nov. 9 to 30

Those who present a valid Veterans Affairs card, service ID, military card or discharge papers will be admitted free through November. Immediate family members will also receive a 50 per cent discount. METRO

Remembrance not mandatory for students

Nov. 11. Schools required to host annual event, but participation is not mandatory

JEREMY NOLAIS
jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Thousands of Calgary students will gather to honour soldiers past and present at Remembrance Day ceremonies Friday; however, staff at every school are required to prepare a back-up plan for those parents who do not wish to have their child attend.

A little-known provision outlined in both the provincial School and Remembrance Day acts prevents schools from deeming their ceremonies mandatory — something that caught local veteran advocates off guard Thursday.

"This is the first I have heard of it," said Joey Bleviss with the Calgary Poppy Fund.

Bleviss said he would question the intent behind a parent's decision to pull their children from a ceremony, adding that the decision to pay respect to veterans should be made free of political or personal opinions about the war.

Carolyn Stuparyk with Alberta Education said the provision falls under the same section of the School Act concerning religious freedom. The act does require students not attending Remembrance Day ceremonies to "remain in the school, silent, during the ceremony."

Olds College. Employee discovers 60-million-year-old fossil

One Olds College employee made a 60 million-year-old discovery that will help advance research of a particularly old species.

"We store all the rocks that are dug up from around campus at our shop in case we want to use them in landscaping," said Leona Megli, a grounds technician at Olds College. "I was looking at one of the rocks and thought, that kind of looks like a fossil."

After contacting the Royal Tyrrell Museum, it was soon discovered that Megli had come across an extremely well-preserved specimen known as a Simoedosaurus.

"This fossil is from an extinct group of reptiles called champsosaurs. These are very much crocodile-looking things," said Dr. Don Brinkman, director of Preservation and Research at the Royal Tyrrell Museum. "We're really quite pleased. It's a beautiful, beautiful specimen."

Brinkman said this Simoedosaurus fossil is from the time just after dinosaurs, and is only the third of it's kind to be discovered in North America.

Megli said she's glad to have helped further research.

"I think it's the last thing you'd think to find at work."

Alleged bank robber

Suspected 'Old Man Winter Bandit' charged

Police believe they have caught a notorious bank robber known as the "Old Man Winter Bandit."

Leonard Richard Collins, 46, a native of Nova Scotia, has been arrested and charged with nine counts of robbery and two counts of theft under $5,000.

It is alleged he robbed two banks in Calgary, three banks and two drug stores in Edmonton as well as banks in Sherwood Park, Spruce Grove and Winnipeg.

After receiving multiple tips, police arrested Collins in Brandon, Man., last week.

"There's a lot of charges," said Calgary police Staff Sgt. Bruce Walker. "Certainly, the community that was affected will now know he's been arrested and take comfort in that."

Walker said the investigation was made all the more complex by having to co-ordinate resources among multiple police services. All of the robberies took place between December 2009 and May 2012.

Last month, the Canadian Bankers Association announced a reward of up to $10,000 for information leading to an arrest.

Stage West's latest production, Two Hit Wonders, opened this week in Calgary. Featuring such artists as 10CC, Tone-Loc and Jackie DeShannon, the show celebrates those who managed to hit the charts twice before drifting off into the annals of music. Metro takes a look at five artists who managed to avoid being one-hit wonders, but only just.

LISA WILTON
Metro Calgary

Edward Bear

This Canadian trio released a handful of AM-radio pop nuggets during the early 1970s. But it was the bittersweet You, Me & Mexico and the cross-border hit, Last Song, that made Edward Bear one of the most successful bands in the country. Both songs are still played regularly on retro and classic-rock stations in Canada and the U.S.

Gloria Gaynor

1960s soul singer Gloria Gaynor had a Top 10 hit in 1974 with a disco version of The Jackson Five's Never Can Say Goodbye. But she made it to the top of the Billboard charts four years later with another dance-floor favourite, I Will Survive. Surprisingly, the anthemic (and still popular) track was originally released as a B-side to her cover of the Righteous Brothers song, Substitute.

Twisted Sister

They had big hair, ridiculous makeup and a penchant for catchy, singalong hard rock, which made them perfect for the new MTV generation. But Twisted Sister was never quite able to duplicate the success of its 1984 breakthrough album, Stay Hungry, which spawned the monster hits, We're Not Gonna to Take It and I Wanna Rock.

Suzanne Vega

You couldn't turn on the radio in 1987 without hearing Suzanne Vega's folk-pop hit, Luka.

Despite the upbeat melody, the song actually dealt with domestic ab` use and child abuse through the eyes of a young boy. Her album, Solitude Standing, enjoyed another boost with the success of the a cappella single, Tom's Diner

She returned to the charts briefly in 1990 when U.K. dance producers DNA remixed Tom's Diner.

The Presidents of the United States of America

The Seattle trio received the highest compliment any band could wish for — A Weird Al Yankovic cover.

Indeed, Weird Al covered the group's 1995 alt-rock hit, Lump, changing the name to Gump (as in Forrest Gump.)

The Presidents of the USA's follow-up single, Peaches, was nominated for a Grammy Award, but, alas, they've since pretty much disappeared from public consciousness.

"With my plan I can text my family back home in Australia, and it doesn't cost me anything."

Nor'easter brings new misery to U.S. East Coast after Sandy

Still in the dark. More than a foot of snow falls on parts of New Jersey, causing further power outages

The New York-New Jersey region woke up to wet snow, hundreds of cancelled flights and more power outages Thursday after a new storm pushed back efforts to recover from a superstorm that left millions powerless and dozens dead last week.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo said losses from Superstorm Sandy in New York state could total $33 billion.

The new storm did not bring a second wave of flooding that some had feared.

"We lost power last week, just got it back for a day or two, and now we lost it again," said John Monticello of Point Pleasant Beach, New Jersey. "Every day it's the same now: Turn on the gas burner for heat. Instant coffee. Use the iPad to find out what's going on in the rest of the world."

But the new storm didn't appear to rouse exhausted residents of the country's most densely populated region to a new chorus of complaints.

Except, perhaps, on this week's presidential election.

Valdimir Repnin emerged Thursday morning from his powerless Staten Island home with a snow shovel in his hand, and a question: "Who won? Obama?" he asked.

The region's greatest challenge remains finding emergency housing for tens of thousands of people, in some cases for the long term.

"We are going to have to look at a ground-up redesign," Cuomo said of the power and fuel supply systems. "With power outages, you paralyze the nation, and chaos ensues."

Military investigates racially charged video

A video showing a Canadian Forces officer with his face in brown makeup pretending to be Osama bin Laden's brother is in poor taste but does not reflect the wider military community, Defence Minister Peter MacKay said Thursday.

MacKay issued a statement in response to a video made in 2010 that features an unidentified military member stationed at 14 Wing Greenwood wearing a fake beard and turban, boasting that he worked with the leader of al-Qaida.

The video shows the officer calling a woman a "silly infidel," saying he drives a taxi and then later yelling at someone off-screen to get away from his car bomb.

MacKay said an investigation into what happened was launched as soon as the Defence Department became aware of the video's existence.

"Two years ago, certain members of the Canadian Forces stationed at CFB Greenwood filmed a video intended for their colleagues that featured inappropriate content and poor taste," MacKay said.

Capt. John Pulchny, a spokesman at 14 Wing Greenwood, said the Canadian Forces National Investigation Service is trying to determine who made the video and whether any military rules were broken. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Filmmaker gets jail time for probation violations

The man behind the anti-Muslim film that sparked violence in many parts of the Middle East was sentenced to a year in federal prison for unrelated probation violations. The sentence was the result of a plea bargain between lawyers for Mark Basseley Youssef and prosecutors. Youssef admitted he had used several false names in violation of his probation and obtained a driver's licence under a false name. He was on probation for a bank fraud case. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arizona gunman gets life in prison for 2011 rampage

Giffords' shooter sentenced. Jared Lee Loughner pleaded guilty; could still receive death penalty from state prosecutors

A man whose 2011 shooting rampage killed six people and wounded 13 others, including Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords, was ordered Thursday to serve seven consecutive life sentences, plus 140 years in federal prison.

Jared Lee Loughner, 24, pleaded guilty under an agreement that guarantees he will spend the rest of his life in prison without the possibility of parole. He avoids a federal death sentence, although state prosecutors could still decide to try him.

Giffords, partially blind, her right arm paralyzed and limp, came face-to-face with Loughner at the sentencing, standing beside her husband as he spoke of her struggles to recover from being shot in the head.

"Her life has been forever changed. Plans she had for our family and her career have been immeasurably altered," said astronaut Mark Kelly, both he and his wife staring at the shooter inside a packed courtroom. "Every day is a continuous struggle to do those things she once was so good at."

One by one, survivors of the attack at a Giffords political event approached the podium to address Loughner, each turning toward him where he sat with his attorneys.

"You took away my life, my love and my reason for living," said Mavanell Stoddard, who was shot three times and cradled her dying husband in her arms as he lay bleeding on the sidewalk after shielding her from the spray of bullets.

Loughner's parents sat nearby, his mother sobbing.

Some victims, including Giffords, welcomed the plea deal as a way to move on. It spared them and their families from having to go through a potentially lengthy and traumatic trial and locks up the defendant for life. Both sides reached the deal after a judge declared that Loughner was able to understand the charges against him. After the shooting, he was diagnosed with schizophrenia and underwent forcible psychotropic drug treatments. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Liberals rejoice at notion of the dawning of a new America

Seattle revellers celebrate early election returns favouring Washington state Referendum 74, which legalized gay marriage. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The United States has long been considered among the most conservative countries in the Western world, particularly when it comes to the importance of religion to its citizens and the distaste for the type of social safety net Canadians and Europeans so cherish.

But with the re-election of President Barack Obama this week on the overwhelming support of women, minorities, gays and young Americans, progressives are declaring the dawning of a liberal America.

Same-sex marriage is now the law in several states. A movement towards the decriminalization of marijuana is on the horizon. Wisconsin elected Tammy Baldwin to the U.S. Senate, the first openly gay member of the chamber.

Progress

"This election was very clearly a demand not to turn the clock back."

Douglas Brinkley, professor at Rice University

Groups that voted in droves for Obama are swelling in numbers — Hispanics and Asian-Americans, in particular.

In 2011, minority births surpassed white births for the first time in the United States, and white men are now a dwindling minority. Indeed, by 2042, the majority of Americans won't be white.

Exit polls on Tuesday night even suggested a historic high in the number of Americans who describe themselves as liberal, a word sneeringly viewed as a slur by many on the right. Twenty-five per cent of voters self-identified as liberals compared to 22 per cent in 2008.

"One election is a one-off; two is a trend," Gary Langer, a pollster who conducted public opinion surveys for ABC News throughout the campaign, said this week.

"The rising influence of minority voters, the lopsided preferences of young voters, the dramatic changes we continue to see on social issues mark more than a second term for Barack Obama. They mark, decisively, the turning of a political page."

New blacklist aims to deter smartphone theft

Database. Phones to go on an electronic list in Canada in a move to deter thieves, protect personal data

Canada's wireless carriers are targeting smartphone theft by setting up a database that will blacklist lost or stolen phones to prevent them from being reactivated.

The move would also help protect personal data on such devices, the Canadian Wireless Telecommunications Association said Thursday.

Smartphones are worth $600 to $700 and can be resold on the black market, noted association president Bernard Lord.

"With this database, it makes that a lot less attractive because the buyer of the stolen phone will not be able to connect to any network in Canada," Lord said from Ottawa.

Canadian wireless carriers are combatting theft with a stolen phone database. MARIO TAMA/GETTY IMAGES FILE

"It eliminates the incentive for stealing a device."

The idea is also to reduce the black market value of a smartphone in the eyes of criminals, Lord added.

Once consumers call their wireless carrier to report their smartphone lost or stolen, the device's internal identification number goes on the electronic blacklist.

Lord said even though more smartphones are lost than stolen, law enforcement officials have raised concerns about the issue.

The database for the Canadian wireless industry will be up and running by September 2013 and Canada's carriers will also be contributing to an international database to help prevent smartphone theft, he said.

However, consumers who have their smartphones lost or stolen are "not off the hook" for paying their smartphone contracts.

A website will also be set up by the association to help consumers protect their smartphone data and help protect themselves from theft.

Lord said the smartphone's ID number — called the international mobile electronic number — will be verified by carriers to make sure the device has not been lost or stolen.

Museum. Forgotten fossilized horn leads to new dinosaur discovery

A piece of a fossilized reptilian horn that sat in an Ottawa museum for decades has led to the discovery of a new dinosaur species the size of a rhinoceros that roamed Alberta 80 million years ago.

Pieces of skulls from the recently named Xenoceratops were originally dug up from rocky sediments in southern Alberta sediments in 1958.

However, a pair of paleontologists rediscovered the bones a decade ago and gradually pieced together the sweeping neck plate of the four-footed, horn-headed giant. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Social financing. Feds consider private funding to improve lives of needy

The federal government wants to tap into a "gold mine" of private-sector funding to finance its social programs — a new approach the New Democrats are dismissing as little more than budget cuts in disguise.

Human Resources Minister Diane Finley launched a "call for concepts" on Thursday, asking businesses, not-for-profits and the volunteer sector to come up with fundamentally new ideas for jointly financing improvements in the lives of the needy.

The launch is a tentative step into the realm of social financing — an approach that is being tested in the United Kingdom and the United States. It invites private-sector investors to provide up-front money and then collect a return on projects that government traditionally pays for, such as homelessness or hunger.

"It's our first official step in inviting your ideas to the table that can help shape future social policy in Canada — in a new way," Finley told a Toronto forum.

"It's time for us to unleash individual initiative so that those who are motivated can help others, and those who need help are given the opportunity to take more responsibility for themselves."

The government wants to collect ideas until the end of the year and then, if all goes well, put out a call for proposals or identify pilot projects. Eventually, Finley foresees a broader "social partnerships" strategy.

"It's really community leaders who can best understand their local challenges, identify solutions and get results," Finley said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Not impressed

The Opposition NDP immediately attacked the idea, accusing the Conservatives of privatizing social services for ideological reasons, based on a model that has flopped in other countries.

- "What they're proposing is a public-relations exercise to justify new cuts to services for Canadians," said Nycole Turmel.

At least 2 dead in blaze at industrial plant

Toxic explosion.
Massive fire was one of two in Quebec Thursday, as another raged in Old Montreal

Two people were reported killed as of press time as an explosion loud enough to be heard for kilometres ripped through an industrial plant Thursday, triggering a fire that produced a thick, dark cloud of toxic smoke.

The blast and fire sent 19 other people to hospital, some with severe burns. The two victims were found in the rubble of the decimated processing plant.

The incident occurred in Quebec's Eastern Townships at the Sherbrooke facility belonging to Neptune Technologies & Bioressources, which produces health products, such as Omega-3 derived from marine life.

Martin Carrier, a Sherbrooke police spokesman, said more than 100 people in Sherbrooke and surrounding suburbs phoned within a minute.

Emergency crews are shown outside Neptune Technologies and Bio Resources in Sherbrooke, Que., Thursday, where a large explosion at the plant sent a number of people to hospital with serious injuries. GRAHAM HUGHES/THE CANADIAN PRESS

"They heard the explosion," Carrier said. "It was a big noise. A lot of black smoke. You could see it everywhere in the city."

It was the first of two major fires Thursday in Quebec.

Hours later, flames were skipping off a rooftop in Old Montreal as emergency crews were called in to deal with a blaze a block away from the famous Notre-Dame Basilica, close to the Montreal La Presse newspaper which had to be evacuated. There were no reports of injuries in the Montreal fire. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aftershock fear as Guatemala earthquake death toll tops 50

7.4 magnitude. Quake caused terror over a wide area; damage reported in all but one of the country's 22 states

Guatemalans huddled in the cold streets of an earthquake-ravaged town without communications or power on Thursday, one day after the worst temblor since 1976 shook nearly the entire country, killing at least 52 people and leaving another 22 people missing.

President Otto Perez Molina said the powerful 7.4-magnitude quake that hit Wednesday morning off the Pacific coast affected as many as 1.2 million people. He said a little more than 700 people were in shelters, with most opting to stay with family or friends.

The president said there had been 70 aftershocks in the first 24 hours after the quake, some as strong as magnitude 4.9.

Damaged homes will be among the biggest problems the country will face in the coming days, Perez added.

Guatemalans fearing aftershocks huddled in the streets of the mountain town of San Marcos, the most affected area, where at least 40 people died. It was the strongest earthquake to hit Guatemala since a 1976 temblor that killed 23,000. The quake centred off the town of Champerico. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frustrated vets. Widows, families say they feel abandoned by Ottawa

Disabled veterans and military widows are unleashing a broadside of frustration against the Harper government just before Remembrance Day, saying they're feeling abandoned and left to fend for themselves.

They have gathered on Parliament Hill to paint a stark picture of bureaucratic indifference and red tape that flies in the face of reassurances from the government, which says the care of military families is a top priority.

Few of the government's touted programs meant to help combat veterans find civilian jobs actually help the disabled, complained retired master corporal Dave Desjardins, who is paralyzed from the waist down. He says the so-called "helmets-to-hardhats" program, which aids ex-soldiers get into the construction industry, is a wonderful resource — but for someone without physical limitations.

Desjardins said many of the head hunters discriminate in favour of officers, leaving non-commissioned members out in the cold.

Ex-soldiers say much of the dissatisfaction can be traced back to the 2006 New Veterans Charter, which overhauled the way ex-soldiers are compensated.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Speaking out

- Tracy Kerr, wife of a triple amputee who fought in Afghanistan, said she and her family have battled for years to get basic needs, such as a lift to get him in and out of the bathtub.
- Jackie Girouard, whose husband was killed by a roadside bomb in Kandahar in 2006, said the families of many soldiers are denied access to the veterans independence program, which helps with yard work and light housekeeping. She said policies that set time limits on accepting assistance, such as two years for education and job retraining, are insensitive and unrealistic.

Families complain about care at veterans facility

Sunnybrook. Veterans' centre unique in Canada in that it gets funding from both Ontario and Ottawa

Canada's largest veterans facility, home to 500 veterans of the Second World War and Korean War, is under fire from several families with complaints their frail relatives have been neglected or forced to endure unsanitary conditions.

They also say raising concerns at Sunnybrook Health Sciences Centre in Toronto — among them delayed bathing and feeding, soiled sheets, dead mice in rooms, a lack of toilet paper, and constant room and caregiver changes — were mostly met with indifference or hostility.

"It's appalling what's going on in the veterans' wing of Sunnybrook," says Rodney Burnell, whose 92-year-old father George lives on the spartan 3rd floor of K-Wing.

For its part, Sunnybrook suggests the complaints are coming from a handful of malcontents.

Some families — those whose relatives need the most care — say there's a bleak reality beyond the pomp of Remembrance Day: Moaning patients ignored; others left to stare at ceilings for hours; dentures hanging from mouths.

Residents, many of whom are unable to feed themselves, go hungry or get cold food, relatives say, because there aren't enough caregivers to feed them.

Some relatives have resorted to hiring their own caregivers to keep watch over their loved ones.

Burnell recounts how her complaints about mice and droppings were dismissed as something that happens in nursing homes because residents eat in their rooms.

Staff finally laid traps next to his bed. Then, she says, they promptly forgot about them. "My son looked underneath the window-ledge area and saw all these (dead) mice," Burnell, 86, says.

Following a "benchmarking" exercise, the facility laid off 12 full-time and eight part-time registered nurses in April. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cross to bear. Winning medal a tough battle

Canadians are a humble bunch.

Maybe too humble. Within a few weeks, Gov. Gen. David Johnston will bestow a final batch of bravery decorations on Canadian troops who fought in southern Afghanistan, but the list likely won't include the nation's highest battle honour: the Victoria Cross.

The notion that Canada will exit its first major shooting war in 60 years without such recognition has some asking what a Canadian soldier must do to win the honour.

The stringent process that sees a nomination pass through no less than three committees of senior officers ensures that selection is based on merit.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

By the numbers

94

The last of Canada's 94 Victoria Crosses were handed out during the Second World War, at a time when the British still oversaw the award on behalf of Commonwealth nations. The Canadian version was created in 1993, but the actual medal was not struck until 2008.

A true-to-life tale of Nazi-targeting jews

The real story.

Documentary uncovers facts behind the Second World War mission dramatized in Quentin Tarantino's action flick Inglorious Basterds

A scene from the TV documentary The Real Inglorious Bastards, which examines truths from Quentin Tarantino's garish Second World War film Inglourious Basterds. HANDOUT/GAT MEDIA/THE CANADIAN PRESS

In Quentin Tarantino's Second World War action flick Inglourious Basterds, a ragtag group of Jewish-American soldiers agrees to go on a dangerous mission hunting Nazis behind enemy lines.

The deadly mercenaries are tasked with collecting 100 scalps apiece on their way to take out the Germans' top military leaders.

Not surprisingly for a Tarantino film, it's cartoonishly over the top and not at all historically accurate.

But there was just enough truth there for Canadian director Min Sook Lee to latch onto for The Real Inglorious Bastards, which airs Thursday on History.

She had previously helmed the similar documentary The Real M*A*S*H and was asked by History to produce another show with a compelling real-life tale that somehow mirrored the Tarantino film.

"I'm not a Tarantino fan — I hadn't seen the film, I wasn't familiar with the story," she admits in an interview.

"So I had to watch the film and then start looking around for something that was similar in real life — and that took a while."

She eventually came across the story of Operation Greenup, a covert mission ordered by the U.S. military's Office of Strategic Services.

Jewish refugees Hans Wijnberg of Holland and Fred Mayer of Germany joined the U.S. army eager to help the Allied effort against Nazi forces. They met at an OSS training camp while learning guerilla warfare and would eventually work with Austrian Franz Weber, who had deserted from the German military.

"It felt like I had my chance to do what I set out to do — kill Nazis," says Mayer in the documentary.

"That's why all the Jewish boys joined."

They parachuted onto a glacier in Germany so they could gather intelligence on the Brenner Pass, the main supply route into Italy. They landed in deep snow, without skis, and after a long journey through brutal wintry conditions, they reached a small hamlet, where they claimed to be members of a German alpine unit.

"These missions had a high rate of failure, they didn't really know what they were doing, there was a lot of making things up as they went along," says Sook Lee.

Through interviews and dramatic re-enactments, the documentary covers how the men then based themselves in safehouses and began sending information back to the U.S. while posing as Germans.

Archaeologists say they have unearthed an almost 2,400-year-old golden hoard in an ancient Thracian tomb in northern Bulgaria.

The treasure was found on Thursday near the village of Sveshtari, 400 kilometres northeast of the capital of Sofia, team leader Diana Gergova said.

She said that among the artifacts, dating back to the end of the fourth or the beginning of the third century B.C., were gold jewelry and applications for horse trappings, a tiara with reliefs of lions and fantasy animals, as well as four bracelets and a ring.

The Thracians lived in what is now Bulgaria, and parts of modern Greece, Romania, Macedonia and Turkey between 4,000 B.C. and the 7th century A.D., when they were assimilated by the invading Slavs.

Assad will 'live and die' in Syria

Civil war. Appearing in a rare interview, the Syrian president vows he won't be forced into exile and will die in his homeland

The bravado sounded familiar. Like the leaders of other countries swept away by Arab Spring uprisings, Syrian President Bashar Assad vowed to never be forced into exile and to die in his homeland.

Assad dug in his heels even as world powers move to boost the opposition in Syria's civil war — the latest turn in a nearly 20-month-old crisis.

"I am not a puppet, I was not made by the West for me to go to the West or any other country," Assad said in an interview with Russia Today, which posted excerpts Thursday on its website. "I am Syrian, I am made in Syria, and I will live and die in Syria."

The rare interview — in which the 47-year-old president spoke in English with his words translated into Arabic — was posted online two days after British Prime Minister David Cameron suggested that Assad could be allowed safe passage out of Syria if that would guarantee an end to the civil war.

Draft. Palestinians take first step to raise UN status to non-member observer state

Palestinians took the first step toward raising their status at the United Nations from an observer to a nonmember observer state Thursday by circulating a draft resolution to the 193 U.N. member states and asking for their support.

The Palestinian observer mission said no decision has been made on when to submit the draft resolution to the U.N. General Assembly for a vote. Arab League foreign ministers are expected to discuss the draft and the timing of its submission at a meeting in Cairo on Nov. 12-13, a Palestinian diplomat said, speaking on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to speak publicly.

A letter from the observer mission accompanying the draft resolution asks U.N. members to support "the enhancement of the status of Palestine in the United Nations General Assembly to be considered by the assembly at a date to be announced in the near future."

There are no vetoes in the General Assembly and the resolution is almost certain to be approved by the world body which is dominated by countries sympathetic to the Palestinian cause.

Israeli military. Explosive-filled tunnel explodes on Israel-Gaza border

A large, explosive-filled tunnel blew up near soldiers on the Gaza-Israel fence late Thursday, an Israeli military spokeswoman said shortly after the incident.

The explosive-filled tunnel was intended to kill, or to try to kidnap soldiers and was one the largest that Israeli forces had seen in years, said Lt. Col. Avital Leibovich in a late-night call with reporters.

"We definitely see it as a very severe event. The amount of explosives were very big," Leibovich said. "A kidnapping attempt is a possibility. Killing soldiers is a possibility."

She said one soldier was lightly wounded and a military vehicle was blown away some 20 metres. The spokeswoman said military officials would convene Friday to discuss their response. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Veteran recalls excitement of being on forefront of emerging female workforce and military service

ROSANNA HAROUTOUNIAN
For Metro

Second World War veteran Helen Rapp says she doesn't want young Canadians to forget the women who served in war.

"We opened the door for women who are in the military now," she said. "That is what we're really very proud of."

In 1941, Rapp left her hometown of Schumacher, Ont., to work in a munitions factory in Hamilton.

"There was a catch, though," said Rapp. "I couldn't go without my mother because I was only 15." Her mother worked in the cafeteria, while Rapp helped make barrels for bofor guns.

"I went out in overalls, with my hair tied back, to this station," said Rapp, recalling she was met at the station by an older man and five younger men," said Rapp.

When the younger men started whistling, the older man stood up for her.

"He said, 'There'll be none of that. She is a member of this crew. You treat her properly.'" Rapp said she nicknamed him Fibber McGee after a character from a radio program.

Rapp said she made friends with four girls from Prince Albert, whose apartment was as busy as "Grand Central Station." The girls would visit the dancehall to meet soldiers training at Hamilton's Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

"You never, ever, did not have a date," said Rapp, laughing. Rapp said one air force trainee from England, Jeff, was a great dancer who taught her the jitterbug.

"He never swung me over his head, but we just loved to dance," she said.

Rapp worked in the factory until 1942. At 16, she pretended she was 18 so she could enter the Canadian Women's Army Corps in Ottawa, where she lives today.

She worked in Ottawa as a section sergeant of the directorate of signals.

"The government wanted women in the military, but our mandate was only until 1946, and then you were out" she said.

"But they did learn that we could do just about any job they imagined."

Joining the war effort

Factory girls for their soldier boys

As husbands, sons, brothers, and fathers were called out to fight on the front lines, some women also thrust themselves into unknown territory by joining munitions factories in the 1940s to supply the men with the weapons they needed for battle.

For some women at the time it was their first job. For others, it was a moral decision to leave their homes and families behind to provide for the war effort.

Women quickly learned their ways around the factories to create weapons such as cannons and ammunition while grappling with the fear of what the war may bring. At the same time, however, it also gave women newfound freedom from social constraints at home.

Veterans speak about what was once taboo

- Rapp says that while soldiers are more open to sharing their wartime experiences, the Canadian government can still do more to support veterans.
- Part of the reason Rapp speaks to other Canadians is to ensure they know that veterans should be valued. "We want to show them that we were there. We made history."

Paying tribute. Bomb Girls actress honoured to salute women like one she portrays in TV series

JESSICA SMITH
Metro in Toronto

Growing up studying history, Charlotte Hegele learned all about the men who fought the Second World War.

It was only years later, reading the script of Bomb Girls, that she really learned about the women.

"I think a lot of young people blur history together and they don't realize that there are specific pockets of time where extraordinary things happened," said Hegele. "It's so important that we tell women's stories."

Hegele plays Kate Andrews, a young woman who flees from her abusive father, a tyrannical street preacher, to Toronto, where she works at Victory Munitions.

The main characters on Bomb Girls are inspired by the real Canadian women who worked in munitions factories. They built bombs that could explode with one false move, in factories they believed could be a target for an attack on Canadian soil.

"On World War II, when I was in school, we spoke so much about men," she said. "We, assumed, for whatever reason, that women during war would just be sitting at home taking care of the family waiting for their man to come home, waiting for the soldiers to come home, when, in fact, their place in society became pivotal to the success of the Allies."

Bomb Girls shows why the war was pivotal for women, how they went to work when their country needed them to and never turned back.

"It's hard for me to imagine how it really would have been, how it really would have felt to be a woman at that time — but I think that women were just itching to be given equal opportunities as men," Hegele said. "It must have been not just liberating but exciting to be able to do jobs — jobs they actually kept."

For Hegele, telling stories about Canadian history is "an important public service" that she learned from her grandfather.

Dr. Joseph Walmsley was a medical officer who fought in Dieppe. When he returned, he would speak at school Remembrance Day ceremonies.

"He would come in with his medals — it was a very proud moment, to see him come and speak in his full uniform," she said. "I wasn't just proud that he was the speaker, it was because he was so proud. It was a moment for him to give some perspective for young people and understanding of what he actually did."

A screen grab from the first episode of Bomb Girls. GLOBAL

Meeting her inspiration

Hegele has had the chance to meet some of the real Bomb Girls who are the show's inspiration. Her first time was at the show's premier in Ottawa.

She recalls thinking so much about her character during the filming and then realizing, at the premiere, the impact Bomb Girls would have on the real women who lived that story.

"It was really scary," she said. "At that moment I thought, 'Okay, I really hope we did them justice and we created something that was respectful and honoured their accomplishments and that they would be proud to watch."

"The original Bomb Girls seemed moved," she said. "At the time of the war, perhaps, it didn't seem for them that they were doing anything extraordinary because it was what their country needed them to do and they were just doing what they could do. But it's really important for our country to know now about the sacrifices they made."

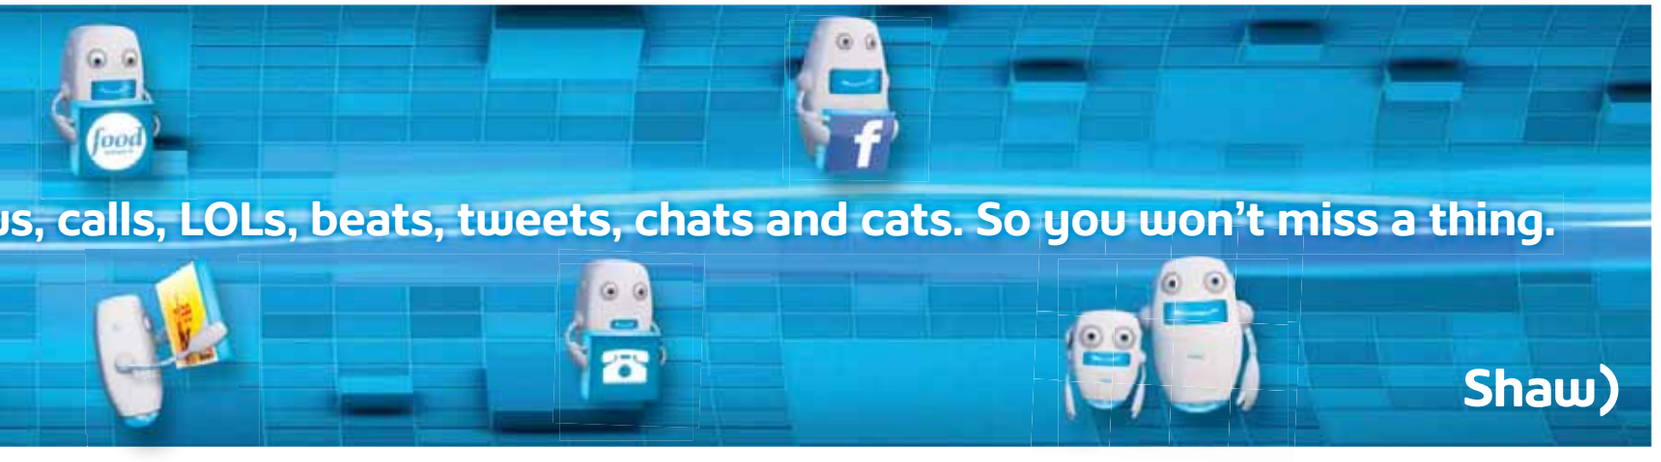
"Some American viewers have been confused because one of the events that happens in the first season is Pearl Harbor, but it doesn't happen until the end. And of, course, Pearl Harbor is the reason the States got involved in the war to begin with... It's nice to know that we're not just telling the women's story, but the Canadian story, because it's unique." Actress Charlotte Hegele



Go it alone, or go to an adviser? Depends on your comfort level

Investing. This is the third of a three-part series on getting into the stock market

IN THE MARKET
Bryan Borzykowski
For Metro

It's never been easier to get into the stock market. You can invest online, through an adviser and at your branch. You can buy stocks, mutual funds, exchange-traded funds, fixed-income and more.

Investing is so simple that it can be overwhelming. Where do you start? What should you buy? How much do you need?

Novice investors will likely want to start with an adviser. They understand the market and know which products are the best. It's also their job to make your money grow, which is hard for most people to do on their own.

Some financial planners, such as bank-based advisers, are free, though others can be expensive, depending on what you want them to do. Many charge a flat fee that includes investing and developing a financial plan.

As well, advisers typically invest in mutual funds, which come with a hefty management ratio. Usually, a mutual fund company will take around two per cent of someone's invested assets to cover expenses. If you don't know what you're doing, though, it's worth paying for the advice.

Online

- Missed the first two columns on entering the stock market? Check out the whole package at metronews.ca/tag/investing.

Savvier investors often buy securities online. Every bank has its own web-based brokerage, but there are other firms, such as Qtrade, Interactive Brokers and Questrade, that offer similar services.

Do-it-yourself investors often buy stocks and exchange-traded funds — a basket of stocks that track a specific index — that don't come with the same management fees as mutual funds do. (Stocks don't come with any management costs.) There is a trading fee, but, depending on how often you trade, it can be negligible. Per trade costs range between $6.99 and $29.99 — it depends on the bank and how often you buy and sell — but it's often cheaper than buying mutual funds with an adviser.

Novice investors will probably want to start with an adviser, says columnist Bryan Borzykowski. ISTOCK

Once you figure out how you want to invest and with what products, you need to decide what type of account to use. Registered Retirement Savings Plans (RRSP) are still the most popular investment account, as you only have to pay tax on the total account balance when you withdraw, likely in retirement.

Tax-Free Savings Accounts, which were introduced in 2009, are giving the RRSP a run for its money. Whatever you invest in a TFSA grows tax-free. While you don't get a tax refund, like you do when you invest in an RRSP, you don't have to pay the CRA when you withdraw.

There are also non-registered accounts that offer preferential tax treatment on capital gains — the difference between what you bought a security for and what it's sold for — and dividends. Most people turn to non-registered accounts after maxing out their RRSP.

See what I mean about choice? It's amazing anyone invests in the stock market at all. But don't get flustered; investing really is easy. Check out your bank's online brokerage account to see what DIY investing has to offer, or talk to a financial adviser for more hands on help.

Suit targets 7 Up antioxidant claims

7 Up with antioxidants will soon be off the market, after an advocacy group accused the drink maker of making misleading health claims.

Dr Pepper Snapple Group says its 7 Up varieties that tout antioxidants will be off the market by early 2013. The company says it made the decision to reformulate the drinks in 2011.

The announcement was made after an advocacy group on Thursday filed a lawsuit saying the drink's claims are misleading because they give the impression the antioxidants come from fruit rather than added vitamin E.

The Center for Science in the Public Interest, which advocates for food safety and nutrition, also noted that the Food and Drug Administration prohibits companies from fortifying candies and soft drinks with nutrients.

THREE WORDS: FOUR MORE YEARS, AND ONE RECORD NUMBER OF RETWEETS

THE LIST
Neil Morton
metronews.ca

1 Call your hockey parody. Hockey blogger Harrison Mooney co-wrote and stars in a hockified version of Robyn's hit Call Your Girlfriend on YouTube called Call The Union. His hilarious plea to the NHL and NHLPA to get a deal done went viral. It features Mooney in a Vancouver Canucks jersey dancing and singing rather poorly. This might be just the jolt the NHL needed. Watch the vid at metronews.ca.

2 Most retweeted tweet, ever. "Four more years" was the simple yet concise three-word tweet that came out from @BarackObama Tuesday night, along with a picture of Barack and Michelle in a warm embrace. It was retweeted nearly 800,000 times — the highest number ever. President of the United States for another term — and King of the Twittersphere, too.

3 Need help? Call @justinbieber. New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie took to tweeting Justin Bieber to get the word out about Hurricane Sandy New Jersey Relief Fund: ".@justinbieber my girls are big fans. Will u help us spread the word about NJReliefFund? For more info: http://tinyurl.com/anufbos #WeWillRebuild." Biebs, always helping causes, obliged, retweeting to his nearly 30 million followers.

4 Falcons 8-0. The Atlanta Falcons were once one of the laughingstocks of the NFL, but their franchise can now do no wrong. With a star QB in Matt Ryan, they are halfway to a perfect season this year after beating the (hapless) Dallas Cowboys 19-13 on Sunday. Even if they don't go unbeaten, a Super Bowl appearance is definitely in their sights — if they beat da Bears!

5 How to use paparazzi. As Maroon 5 frontman Adam Levine and his girlfriend were leaving a lunch spot in L.A., trailed by paparazzi, he made a makeshift sign encouraging passersby to "Text Red Cross to 90999" for Hurricane Sandy victims. My genius idea: Every celebrity should do this while being trailed by the paps — have a sign handy to promote a philanthropic cause.

6 Mo bro! I'm proud to be growing a stache for the first time ever — well, since the excitement of facial hair in Grade 8. It's for Movember Canada, of course, which raises money and awareness for men's-health issues such as prostate cancer and mental illness. Give at ca.movember.com or donate to me personally at mobro.co/4648193. Thanks!

7 Extreme Cougar Wives. A program airing later this month on TLC called Extreme Cougar Wives features couples with wide-ranging age differences, including 65-year-old Stephanie, who is in love with 28-year-old Octavio. While this "cougar" thing may have hit its tipping point now, all the power to these women. If men can date way younger women — creepy! — then why not turn the tables?

8 Etiquette expert. If etiquette confuses you, like in my case (I get confused over when not to wear plaid) what better place to turn than Canadian etiquette expert Karen Cleveland. She tackles all things etiquette on her blog — mannersaresexy.com — from the traditional — how to bring your own wine to a restaurant — to the taboo — why your company should have topless meetings (as in, sans mobile devices).

9 Trail Blazer, not. A new iPhone app called Trail Blazer that's geared toward kids stars a buffalo who bikes and snowboards past northern Alberta landmarks while avoiding obstacles and collecting coins. Oh, and the game is made by Syncrude, one of Canada's largest producers of oil from Alberta's oilsands, and includes feel-good, pop-up messages about the company. Game over.

Eyewitnessed robbery

Biker-gang raids shopping mall

This amazing image shows the dramatic moment a gang of robbers made their escape on motorcycles in a shopping centre.

Six people riding three motorbikes and carrying axes drove into Brent Cross Shopping Centre in north London, England.

METRO

Photographer's viewpoint

"It was like a Hollywood film. I would never have imagined someone would do that in a shopping centre. It was like a scene out of James Bond."

Rick Treister, photographer

Treister was on his way to the Apple store in Brent Cross Shopping Centre when he heard the sound of screaming and breaking glass. He managed to get one picture of the robbers as they passed him at full speed.

Details of robbery

- Panic in the shopping mall. Eyewitnesses said the thieves sped into the first floor of the shopping mall and headed for the Fraser Hart high-end jewelry store before smashing windows to get at the valuables on display. Shoppers began to panic as the robbery took place, with many people running for the exits. Some shops would not let customers leave while the incident was underway, witnesses said.
- Bikes abandoned. The motorbikes used in the robbery were found abandoned in Mill Hill, north London, 15 minutes after the robbery took place. Flying Squad detectives from the capital's police department have released footage of the theft taking place, to help in appeals for witnesses and information. So far, no arrests have been made.
- Not an isolated incident. The smash-and-grab incident came a day before a pawnbroker's store was targeted about three kilometres away by another motorbike gang.

Lindsay Lohan plays Liz Taylor in the Lifetime TV movie Liz & Dick, which airs Nov. 25. HANDOUT

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Why we still love Liz

Rewind. In celebration of the Lohan-led TV movie Liz & Dick, the Reel Guys pick their faves from the 'greatest movie star of all'

Richard: Mark, I know we'll get to the good Liz Taylor films in a second, but I'd like to start with Boom! a strange movie about a much-married booze hound (Liz wearing Vegas-inspired Kabuki gowns!) and a penniless poet (Dick) who romances her in the final hours of her life. This one fails on virtually every front, except that in its awfulness it has a campy charm, and for the ones who get the joke, great entertainment value.

Mark: Boom? Richard, you are perverse! But I have to admit that even Taylor's better films veer toward camp. Look at Butterfield 8, which I consider her essential mid-career movie. She plays an amoral man-eater who's a borderline prostitute. The movie has the greatest line Liz Taylor ever committed to celluloid, "Mama, face it, I was the slut of all time!" Although the movie is badly dated, it makes a strong case for the return of the negligee.

RC: I guess I like anything with Liz and Burton. Like The V.I.P.s. As if having Liz and Dick on screen wasn't enough star power The V.I.P.s adds in Orson Welles, Maggie Smith and a host of other early '60s A-listers. The melodramatic story is set on one night at the Heathrow Airport first class lounge. Liz looks amazing in this, but for me the highlight is Welles's sleazy movie producer who'll do anything—including marrying someone he hardly knows — to avoid a whopping tax bill.

MB: It must be some kind of meta-theme in Taylor's work: fat old guys stealing the movie from The Most Beautiful Woman In The World. Burl Ives has the same effect in Cat on a Hot Tin Roof. When he's onscreen, you forget about Taylor, which is quite a feat. Liz is a good little scene chewer in this adaptation of Tennessee Williams' mediocre play. Lots of scenes occur in the bedroom, giving her ample opportunity to dress and undress.

RC: Burton was Liz's most famous co-star, but she frequently co-starred with Montgomery Clift, who once said, "She feels like the other half of me." Check out Suddenly Last Summer or A Place in the Sun to see their chemistry.

MB: To my mind, Taylor was just a movie star until she played Martha in Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf. Brilliantly directed and guided by Mike Nichols, she revealed herself to be a great actress as well.

Synopsis

The Reel Guys will wait to pass judgment on Lindsay Lohan's portrayal of Elizabeth Taylor (opposite Grant Bowler as Richard Burton) in Lifetime's Liz & Dick, but with the TV movie airing this month, we thought we'd take the opportunity to have a look at the real deal; the movies of the lilac-eyed La Liz.

Twilight star a child no Lautner

Transforming in the spotlight. Taylor Lautner talks spending his formative teen years as the world's most famous werewolf

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Taylor Lautner started the Twilight franchise when he was 15 years old, and in the five years since he's become an international celebrity. The end of your teenage years can be awkward enough as is, but being under the media spotlight adds a whole different level of discomfort. "It's amazing how much a 15-year-old to a 20-year-old grows up and matures just regularly. Going through this, it definitely was at an accelerated rate," he says. "[The scrutiny] definitely added to it. It was the part of it that we never predicted."

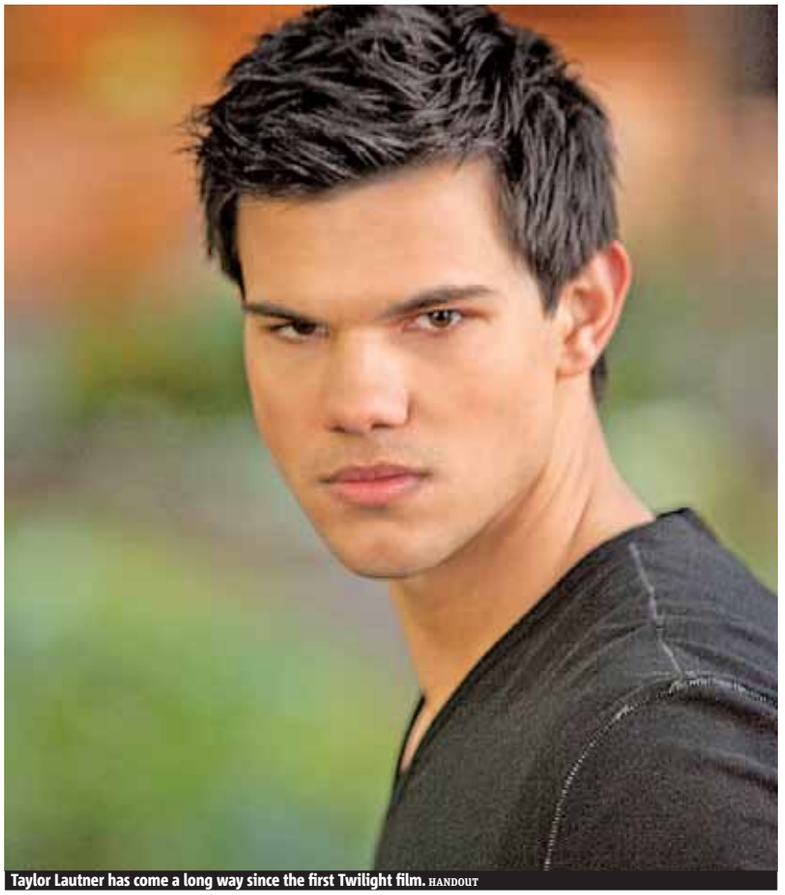
The first lesson Lautner had to learn was to not just hide from the world. "When something like that happens to you, you tend to [withdraw]," says Lautner, who became a tabloid staple when rumours about him dating Taylor Swift circulated in 2009.

"The worst thing you can do in that situation is just lock yourself up inside your house and not do anything and just be scared. You just have to think about things more and maybe just plan more in advance, but you don't want to change who you are and everything you do just because of it."

Of course, he did have to make some changes because of his fame — like where he spends his free time. "I haven't been to a mall in a while and I haven't been to a theme park in a while, but I figure out how to get into movie theatres," he says. "I do [wear a disguise], but they don't work at all for some reason, and I don't know why. I think I literally just have to put prosthetics on because literally I put a baseball hat on, glasses, pull the hat down, I look in the mirror and I'm like, 'All right, you are set. You don't look anything like yourself.' And the second I step outside, it's almost like I'm wearing nothing."

Looking ahead

So where does Lautner go from here? Certainly the Twilight franchise has given him a leg up over other 20-year-old actors, but his first non-franchise entry, last year's Abduction, was a critical and commercial failure. Lautner's plan to avoid another stinker, he says, is to diversify. "I'm looking forward to doing something different for myself and challenging myself," he says. "I don't want to do the same thing over and over again. My goal is to challenge myself to a wide variety of roles and genres of film."



Taylor Lautner has come a long way since the first Twilight film. HANDOUT

After Twilight. What happens when you've spent five years as a vampire?

The actors who portray the Cullen family in the Twilight series have had the luxury of a steady gig for five years now — something of a rarity for a film actor. But that's all over now. So, who's ready for life after Twilight and who's not? We checked in with the Cullens.

It took a lot of actors to fill out the characters from Stephenie Meyer's tale.
HANDOUT

Kellan Lutz: "I've been working on my clothing line for about two years called Abbott + Main, which is another one of my passions — fashion. It's in Nordstrom, it's in Bloomingdales, it's doing great. Career-wise, I love action movies so I'm producing a couple..."

Nikki Reed: "I just put out an album. Every song is written by my husband and me, and we sing together. We also have a song on the Twilight soundtrack. I did four really cool films this year, two I'm especially proud of — one called Empire State with Liam Hemsworth and ... In Your Eyes, that was written ... by Joss Whedon."

Jackson Rathbone: "I've been focusing on my production company, trying to get projects launched. It's a learning process as a producer just as much as I constantly learn as an actor. I do have hopes to direct. And I always make independent music through my record label, Happy Jack Music."

Ashley Greene: "We're all thankfully working. I'm doing this movie, CBGB, right now that's very independent. Everyone involved is a well-oiled machine. It's just fun..."

Peter Facinelli: "I was doing Nurse Jackie and the Twilight saga literally shooting simultaneously for three or four years, so it's hard even now going to Nurse Jackie and not having another job to go to."

Elizabeth Reaser: "We had careers before this. I know how to manage what that lifestyle is, and you find a way to be creative and be useful..."

Drama

Midnight's Children

Director. Deepa Mehta

Stars. Satya Bhabha, Shahana Goswami, Rajat Kapoor

Deepa Mehta, one of Canada and India's premiere filmmakers, melds history and mysticism in her adaptation of Salman Rushdie's Booker Prize-winning novel, set against the 1947 partition of India. Two boys born at the exact moment of India's independence from the British Empire are switched by a nurse — a poor boy put in a rich family and the rich with an itinerant musician. There are numerous insights into India, its culture and incredibly rich modern history.

Comedy/Drama

The Sessions

Director. Ben Lewin

Stars. John Hawkes, Helen Hunt

The Sessions should be anything but the jovial, feel-good flick that it is. Based on the real life of Mark O'Brien (played brilliantly by John Hawkes) a quadriplegic poet and writer who hired a surrogate to explore his sexuality, moviegoers may expect murky melodrama. Instead, writer/director Ben Lewin refuses to patronize, gracing the film with a light, matter-of-fact quality. The result is an intelligent, nuanced comedy that reassures audiences of their own relationship to sexuality.

Wu-Tang Clan lead man heads in a new direction

The Man with the Iron Fists. RZA turns his love of the martial arts film genre into a directing gig with his first feature film

OLIVIA MORROW
Metro World News in New York

RZA says he paid homage to his favourite martial arts flicks in his new movie. HANDOUT

There's not much that RZA, more formally known as Bobby Fitzgerald Diggs, can't do. Starting out as the leader of the popular hip-hop group the Wu-Tang Clan, he has since climbed his way up the ladder producing, acting and screenwriting. Now, he adds director to his resume. RZA finally showed his baby, The Man with the Iron Fists, to the world last week, but not before facing a few obstacles, including chronic loneliness and cultural discrepancies, along the way.

RZA said one of the hardest things about making the martial arts film was spending over 150 days in a foreign country without his family. "The different vibe was just a lonely situation really, not only not seeing any blacks in China, but not seeing no whites either," he says. "My wife wasn't able to come over because of the duties of home ... so I was really lonely,"

Although he's no stranger to the industry, RZA said he faced many difficulties as a first-time director. "You've got to think, first of all, even having the level of talent, trust me, and to have a mutual trust back and forth was a challenge because I'm not just playing with just any Joe Schmoe. (I've) got some of the best in the world coming to represent with me and you want to protect that," he says.

Longing for that 1980s bully

scener@metronews.ca

Contemporary bullying is a lot more diabolical than it used to be, mainly because the physical and psychological assault no longer lets up when the school bell rings.

Social media has made it possible to keep the harassment train chugging along with the relentlessness of a freight train, 24/7.

With the 10th annual Bullying Awareness Week kicking off Nov. 12, we take a wistful look back at 1980s movie meatheads, those one-dimensional beat-down artists who, in the end, always got their just dessert.

Moody My Bodyguard - 1980

Moody (Matt Dillon) and his flunkies run an extortion ring, taking their classmates' lunch money in exchange for "protection." When the new kid, Clifford, refuses to go along, Moody and his minions make his life miserable: elbowing him on the basketball court, tripping him and dumping rotting garbage in his gym locker. Clifford fights back by befriending the school's reclusive misfit Linderman, whose reputation reduces Moody's crew to cowering gerbils. Gets What's Coming: With Linderman in his corner, Clifford manages to break Moody's nose.

The prized pupil of a sensei with sadistic tendencies, Lawrence, (William Zabka), takes Cobra Kai's "Strike first, strike hard, no mercy" ethos outside of the dojo. While on the surface JL fits the part of the archetypal alpha dog, the All-Valley Karate champ is hurting. He has recently broken up with is girlfriend Ali (Elisabeth Shue) and he wants her back. Lawrence channels his anger toward the new kid from New Jersey who is making a play at his ex. Gets What's Coming: Daniel-son waxes him with a crane kick. In defeat though, he learns humility and respect: "You're all right, LaRusso!"

Chet Donnelly Weird Science - 1985

Chet (Bill Paxton) is a crewcut Neanderthal who gets his jollies picking on his younger brother Wyatt and his friend Gary. A triple threat tormentor, this psycho sibling traffics in lapel scrunching wall-shoves, wedgies, breakfast larceny, and puerile insults that tend to feature the words 'buttwad' and 'dickweed'. Gets What's Coming: Computer generated vixen, supermodel Kelly LeBrock, uses her I Dream of a Supermodel Genie powers to transform Paxton into a slimy monster that could pass for Jabba the Hut's son.

Biff Tannen Back to the Future - 1985

The bully plies his trade in the past, present, and future throughout the trilogy. Resentful of anybody with more brains than the pea sized one he's packing between his ears, Biff attempts to level the intellectual playing field between him and George McFly by connecting fist with cranium. The "hello, hello, anybody home?" McFly taunt would become a popular real-life bullying technique. Gets What's Coming: Biff gets covered in manure when trying to ram a skateboarding Marty McFly into a truck and George McFly gets the girl after KO'ing Biff with a left hook.

The Alpha Betas & Pi Delta Pis Revenge of the Nerds - 1984

After being rejected by every frat at Adams College the nerds form their own. The campus Greek community is less than welcoming and unleashes a series of demeaning pranks on the nerdy Tri-Lams. Get What's Coming: When pushed to the brink, the nerd herd unleashes its superior intellect. They stage a series of retaliatory attacks on the Alpha Betas, a panty raid on the Pi Delta Pi sorority complete with the installation of spy cameras and are ultimately victorious at the school's Greek Games.

Wise words

Listen to the teacher. Webb shares wisdom.

- Music. When asked about the state of contemporary music, Webb is still alert. How about the resurgence of beard-folk and the rise of Bon Iver and Fleet Foxes? "It's cyclic," he says of our return to roots. "The technological pendulum has swung wildly in one direction for such a long time."

Untangling the Webb of a musician

Songwriter. Jimmy Webb has been the man behind numerous hits for well over a generation

JONATHAN DONALDSON
scene@metronews.ca

Although he's not extremely famous, songwriter Jimmy Webb is widely considered to be one of the greatest songwriters of the rock-era.

That's because unlike Lennon/McCartney, Smokey Robinson, or even Carole King, Webb was a pure songwriter whose greatest moments came at the hands of others.

But whether it was Sinatra performing Didn't We, the 5th Dimension doing the delectably light Up, Up and Away or Glen Campbell's own poignant readings of Wichita Lineman and By The Time I Get To Phoenix, Jimmy Webb's uncanny knack for marrying lyric to melody always shines through.

This week, the MFA features two performances from Webb in their Ruth and Carl J. Shapiro Celebrity Lecture series, featuring not only the singer and his piano, but also anecdotes and Q&A.

He's now in his mid-60s and still active on the recording scene: 2010's Just Across the River features career-spanning remakes with vocalists from Lucinda Williams to Jackson Browne and Volume 2 is on its way.

Webb now finds himself in the unique position of being a professor emeritus on the art of songwriting.

He is the chairman of the National Songwriter's Hall of Fame, sits on the ASCAP Board of Directors and his 1999 book Tunesmith is still critically regarded as the best book on songwriting.

"I don't do stand-up, but I do sit-down, because I am at the piano," says Webb on his own performance style, which he has worked hard to continually improve over the years.

"I try to make people laugh and let them see that, as horrible as the prospect is of exposing one's self as completely as songwriters do, that there is a funny side to it as well!"

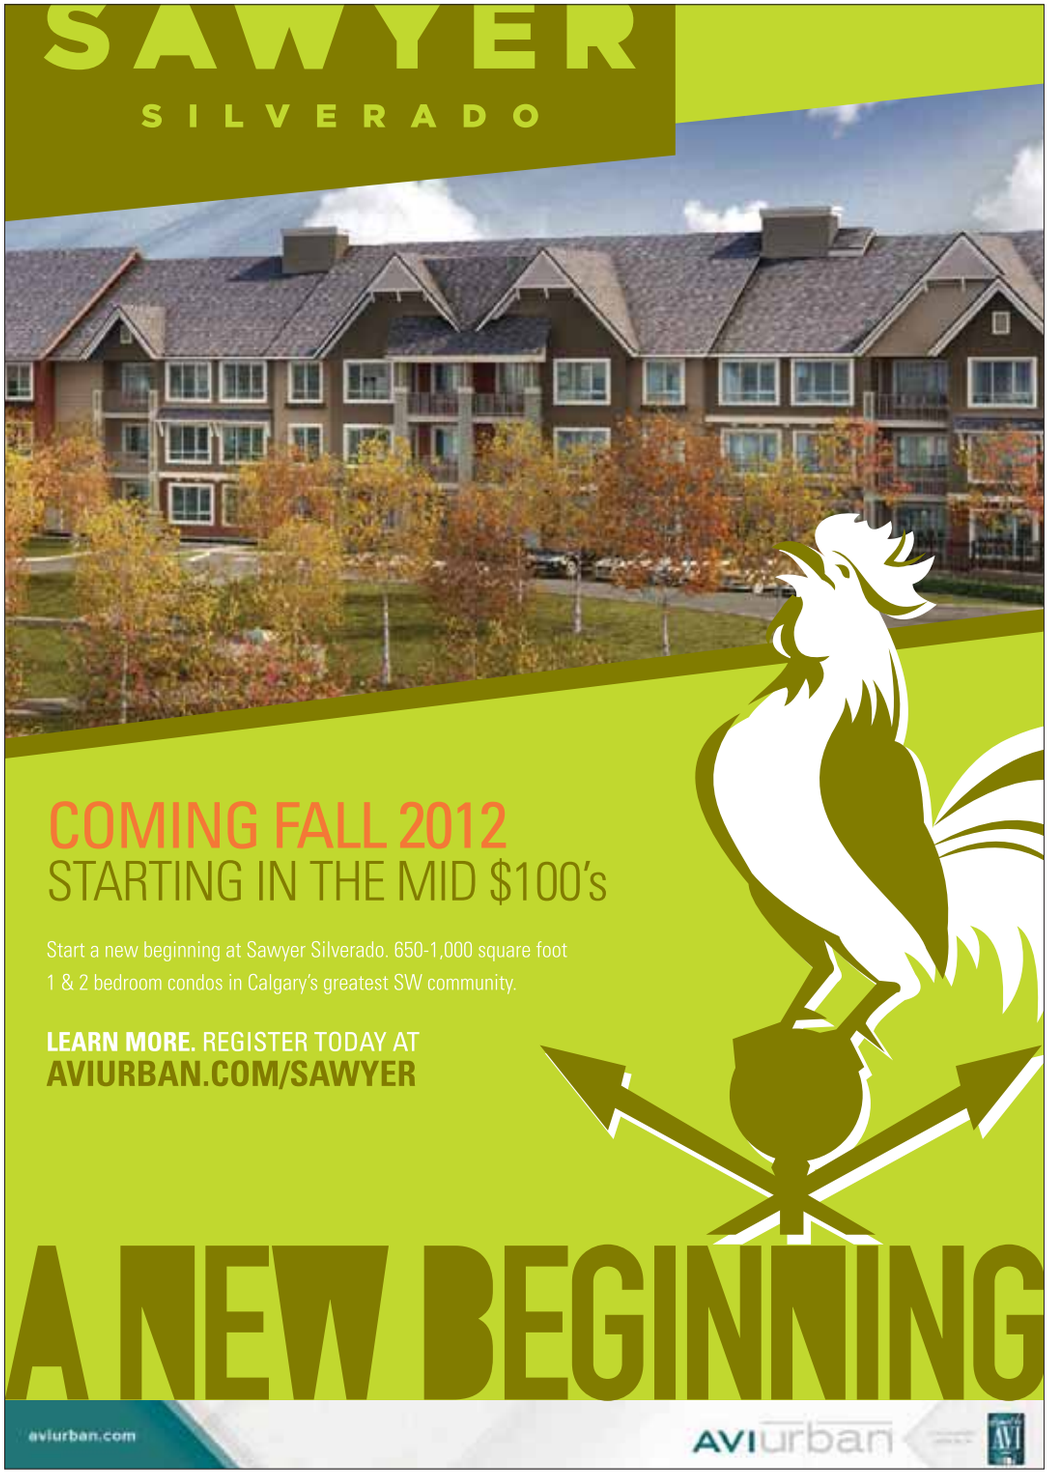
Lighter side

See the lighter side of the musician.

- Mysterious. Although Webb has a grand Southern wit, fans know him best for his often-mysterious lyrics. "I've certainly left the door wide open for all kinds of crazy interpretations," says Webb, recalling past letters from admirers whose interpretations exceeded his fantasies.
- One letter. One wrote that her husband played Wichita Lineman every day, but never understood why the protagonist got electrocuted in the end.
- Another letter had a familiar ring. Another praised MacArthur Park (widely-lampooned for its infamous 'cake in the rain' metaphor) as an ode to General MacArthur. "Anyone who might wonder if I've been punished enough for writing 'McArthur Park,' rest at ease!"



It took Calvin Harris 18 months to 'make music and have fun again'

New album. Scottish DJ talks about how he walked away from band life and embraced a new genre to find success

ALEKSANDRA SAGAN
Metro World News

Calvin Harris walked away from being a band musician and stepped into the role of DJ. HANDOUT

Calvin Harris had one concept in mind when working on 18 months — his latest album, which debuted in the second spot on iTunes in Canada last week — to focus on other singers' voices.

"I just wanted to take the pressure off being a singer and a band guy, which wasn't working out for me at all," the Scottish DJ said while sitting on a couch in his room in a posh Toronto hotel.

"I just wanted to make music and have fun again."

After a gig in 2010, Harris said he told his band mates that he never wanted to sing or perform with a band again and that he was going to be making some changes.

Instead, inspired by other dance music, he started working on songs for 18 months.

The album is named after the length of time it took to produce the tracks, he said of the obscure title.

He wrote the song Bounce and asked singer Kelis to perform the vocals.

"I'm still indebted to her for doing that," he said, adding that Kelis was reluctant because she thought it was a weird song.

Kelis' vocals on the song let other artists know he was interested in collaborations.

Eventually, 18 months became a labour of many voices, including Rihanna, Ellie Goulding and Dizzee Rascal. We Found Love — his mix with R&B sensation Rihanna — became an instant hit.

It topped music charts in 16 countries, including Canada.

Still, Harris said he is happy he stuck with his roots, since most of the featured artists on his album are from the U.K.

"I think it's kind of nice. It means I've not completely watered everything down and got American voices all over the place."

Promoting the new album, Harris has played shows across Canada.

This fall, he played in front of full houses in Calgary, Toronto and London.

Harris' favourite new song to perform at these shows has been Feel So Close — a track on which he sings.

He said that is his pick because it gets the best reception from the fans.

For any possible future albums, Harris does not know if he will continue working with other artists in the same way.

But, one thing is for certain.

"I'm definitely not going to be singing on things," said Harris. "I definitely can't stretch that across a whole album."

Theatre might be Evil, but Palmer's seeing a halo on Kickstarter

New album. Amanda Palmer receives 1.2 million pre-orders for her latest effort before even laying down a track

LINDA LABAN
Metro World News

A compliment makes a gal feel like a million bucks, and there's no greater compliment than, well, a million bucks, which is what Amanda Palmer received via her fan-fueled Kickstarter fundraiser for her new album, Theatre is Evil.

"I got $1.2 million in pre-orders," corrects Palmer.

She's speaking from New York, where she's rehearsing with her band.

"It doesn't mean I have a million dollars. It does mean that business is good."

There's no denying the validation when fans shell out before hearing a single note of music, though.

"It's a big symbolic gesture on the part of my fans that tells me they have an enormous amount of faith in me. But this is the relationship I have developed ... which isn't about music. It's about art and love and creating a community. The music is a bit of a red herring."

Palmer catches herself and laughs at her last statement.

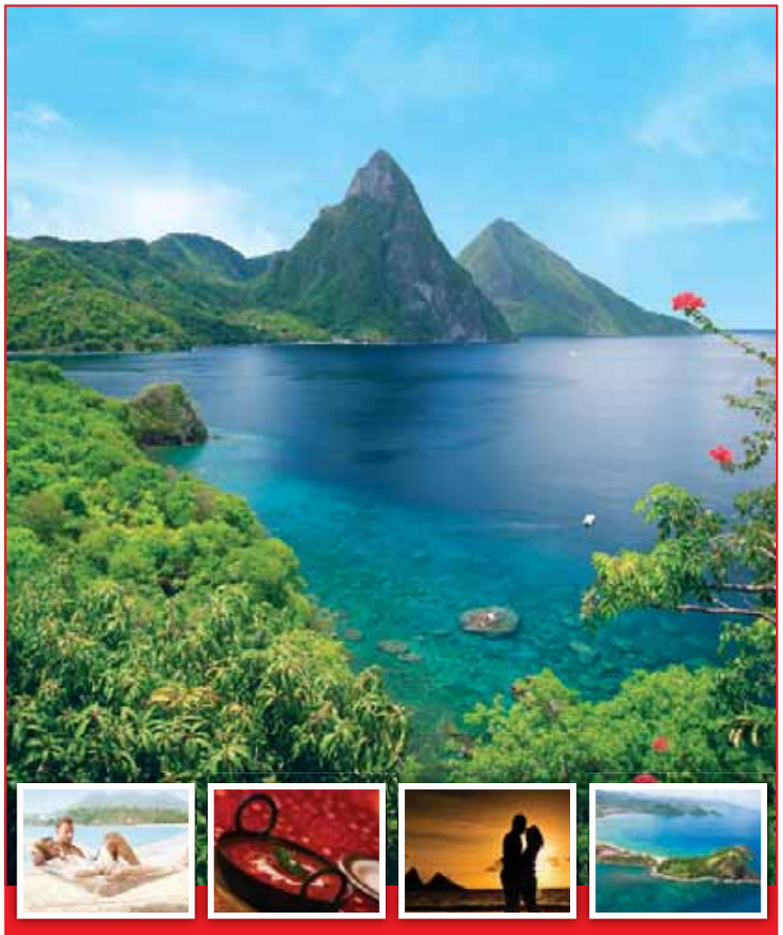
"Well, if I weren't a performer, none of this would be happening," she adds.

"I'm not interested in having fans and admirers. I don't want to be a pop star. I'm among those artists who use art and music to connect."

Theatre is Evil

For Amanda Palmer, calling an album Theatre Is Evil is like Snoop calling a project I Don't Like Marijuana.

- Quote. "I do love theatre, the title is highly ironic," says Palmer. "But I struggle with the current manifestation of the theatre world. It's dying a strange death and hopefully experiencing a rebirth the same way music is. It's not the artists creating it, but the way culture feels about it. So much is academic."



Winter's almost here and it's time to come up with an escape plan.

While the reunion between Kristen Stewart and Robert Pattinson hasn't become official yet, the Twilight co-stars are practically living together again, according to Us Weekly. Sources say Pattinson has been spending his nights lately at Stewart's new $2 million home despite his own being nearby. "They basically live together again," a source says.

Lawrence and her man are best buds

Hunger Games star Jennifer Lawrence and her boyfriend, X-Men: First Class co-star Nicholas Hoult, have a pretty good thing going, to hear Lawrence tell it. "My boyfriend is honestly my best friend, and hopefully I'm his best friend too," Lawrence tells Elle magazine in an interview. "He's my favourite person to be around and he makes me laugh harder than anybody. OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Cyrus: I'm only having one marriage (and one divorce)

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

Miley Cyrus went on The Ellen DeGeneres Show to clear up a few things regarding that whole "I'm having three marriages" rumour (apparently spread by father Billy Ray) that's been going around.

"There is some rumour going around that I'm having, like, 47 weddings. I'm not," Miley told Ellen on Thursday. "I'm having one wedding. That's my day and whatever I want on that day will be about me and that moment."

But that doesn't mean the wedding will be anytime soon, as the 19-year-old is working on her career. "I'm so focused on my record. … I kind of don't want to be in between touring and trying to plan all that, because I didn't really realize until I got a wedding planning book what you have to decide on," she said. "Like, I don't care what colour the napkins are, to be honest. I really don't care."

Smart girl: Hosting three weddings sounds like a logistical nightmare. Does that mean guests have to give her three presents? Do they have to do the Electric Slide three times? And does it mean she would (inevitably) have to have three divorces?

John Travolta

Travolta's long-time friend Kirstie Alley has his back

John Travolta has been fending off a lot of accusations about his sexuality lately, with several male masseurs suing the star for sexual harassment and assault this year, but he has at least one ally in his corner — longtime friend Kirstie Alley. "I know John with all my heart and soul, and he's not gay," the actress tells Barbara Walters in an interview, calling Travolta the "greatest love of my life." Alley has her own theories for the persistent speculation about Travolta's sexuality. "I think in Hollywood, if someone gets famous enough, and they're not out doing drugs and womanizing, what do you say about them?"

If there's one thing I learned from visiting a gazillion wineries across Australia in record time is that there's more to Down Under than red wines. While they've become synonymous with the dark, spicy goodness that is shiraz; the thick, meaty fruit of Cabernet Sauvignon; and more recently, plump, fruit-forward pinot noir, the Aussies make darn fine white wines too.

I think it was me who said that you really have to wrap your lips around reds before you can fully appreciate whites.

Oz's New World climate is a perfect home for the development of white wines with rich, flowing personalities that, more often than not, massage unique flavour profiles from familiar fruit.

Chardonnay, Sauvignon blanc and riesling are the big three whites in Australia — with pinot grigio making some major in-roads, as is the lesser know viognier.

Yet another expat French varietal from the Rhone Valley, viognier's plush, white pepper character and lightly tropical style is well represented in Yalumba's 2011 Y Series Viognier ($15.99 to $17.99) from South Australia.

It's a great wine to pair with a wide variety of cheeses, along with grand roast poultry dinners, and Thai and Asian cuisine.

Asian Beef with Crisp Vegetables. Stir-fry is a tasty and easy way to serve up protein, vegetables and grains on one plate

ROSE REISMAN

Beef stir-fry is an all-time favourite for the family, especially the kids. It's the one way I make sure my kids are getting their protein, vegetables and grains.

Be sure not to overcook the vegetables. Use the best quality steak, such as rib eye, sirloin, filet or New York. You can serve this over rice or rice noodles. The colours and textures of this dish give it great eye appeal.

This recipe serves four. RYAN SZULC, FROM ROSE REISMAN'S FAMILY FAVORITES (WHITECAP BOOKS)

Ingredients

- 3/4 cup beef (or chicken) stock
- 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
- 2 tbsp low-sodium soy sauce
- 2 tbsp rice vinegar
- 2 tsp sesame oil
- 1 tbsp cornstarch
- 2 tsp finely chopped garlic
- 1 1/2 tsp finely chopped ginger
- 12 oz boneless grilling steak
- 2 tsp vegetable oil
- 1 1/2 cups chopped broccoli
- 1 1/2 cups thinly sliced red bell pepper
- 1 1/2 cups snow peas
- 1/4 cup chopped cilantro or parsley
- 1/4 cup chopped green onions
- 2 tbsp chopped toasted cashews (optional)

1. Sauce: Whisk stock, brown sugar, soy sauce, vinegar, sesame oil, cornstarch, garlic and ginger in a bowl. Set aside.

2. Lightly coat a large, nonstick skillet with cooking spray and place over high heat. When the skillet is hot, brown the beef for 3 minutes, or until it's browned but still rare. Remove from the pan, let rest for 5 minutes, then slice thinly.

3. Respray the pan. Heat the vegetable oil, then add the broccoli, red pepper and snow peas. Cook for 3 minutes. Return the beef to the pan. Stir the sauce and add to the pan. Stir-fry for 2 minutes or until the sauce is thickened and bubbly and the beef is done to your liking. Be careful not to overcook.

4. Place on a serving platter and garnish with cilantro or parsley, green onions and cashews (if using). ROSE REISMAN'S FAMILY FAVORITES (WHITECAP BOOKS) BY ROSE REISMAN

Apology

Calgary host says Riders comment 'neither funny nor appropriate'

A Calgary sports radio personality apologized Thursday for making what he called a "stupid and idiotic" on-air comment suggesting he hoped the Saskatchewan Roughriders' plane would crash and four of the players die.

Dean "Boomer" Molberg, a morning show co-host at Sportsnet 960 The FAN, made the comment Wednesday while discussing the Stampeders' upcoming CFL playoff game against the visiting Roughriders, said program director Kelly Kirch.

Molberg apologized on the air Thursday and in a statement on the station's website.

"It was an attempt at being funny, which in the end was neither funny nor appropriate. Not even close," Molberg said on the website. "It was clearly not thought out, for if it was I'd have never said it. There is no excuse for it, and I'm not in any way looking to defend my actions.

"This was in no way, shape or form a ratings ploy or an attempt to garner attention to myself or the radio station. I made a mistake."

Four members of the Saskatchewan Roughriders — defensive end Gordon Sturtridge, centre/tight end Mel Becket, guard Mario DeMarco and offensive lineman Ray Syrnyk — were killed in a plane crash in 1956 along with Winnipeg Blue Bombers offensive guard Calvin Jones.

A total of 62 people died when the plane went down into Mount Slesse near Chilliwack, B.C., as players were returning from an all-star game in Vancouver.

All four Roughriders had their numbers retired by the club.

NHL negotiations alive in New York

Lockout. Bettman says 'still a lot of work to do' after fourth straight day of talks

The NHL and NHL Players' Association will meet for a fourth straight day in an attempt to salvage a shortened season.

Key negotiators from the league and union, including NHL commissioner Gary Bettman and NHLPA executive director Donald Fehr, met for more than five hours Thursday and indicated talks will continue on Friday.

"I don't really have much to say," said Bettman. "We met with the players' association the last three days and we're planning on meeting again tomorrow. But I'm not going to discuss the negotiations or the substance of what we're talking about.

"I really don't think that would be helpful for the process."

A worker paints red hash marks at the Tampa Bay Times Forum in Tampa, Fla., earlier this fall. THE CANADIAN PRESS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Fehr was similarly tight-lipped.

"All I can say is that we discussed a wide range of topics relating to the issues between us," he said. "I really can't say more than that at this point."

Reporters managed to uncover the "undisclosed" location where the talks are being held. The sides have been congregating this week at the midtown Manhattan offices of Proskauer Rose, the law firm where NHL lead counsel Bob Batterman works, and across the street from the building where the 2004-05 CBA was hammered out.

Little is known about exactly where talks stand.

Sources told The Canadian Press that the NHL responded to a pair of union proposals on Thursday. On Wednesday, the NHLPA tabled new offers regarding revenue sharing and the league's "make whole" provision, with the union suggesting a system where the players' share in revenue drops to 50-50 in the third year of the deal.

The "make whole" provision is seen as the fundamental issue left to solve.

With all regular-season games cancelled through Nov. 30, negotiations have reached a critical stage. Ten days will be needed from the time an agreement is struck until the season starts and there is still hope among the parties that a shortened schedule could begin by Dec. 1.

CFL. Calgary's Rider Nation fired up for West semifinal

Local Roughriders fan Cory Ferguson isn't afraid to wear his team colours with pride. SUBMITTED

Watermelons will be hollowed, long underwear will be donned, and, before it's all said and done, members of Calgary's Rider Nation chapter hope to see their green gridiron giants come away with a victory Sunday.

"It starts right when you get up — you start making the calls — you know it's game day," said Cory Ferguson, founder of the local group promoting all things Saskatchewan Roughriders-related. "It's an all-day experience. What can I say? We're diehard through all of the good and the bad."

The Roughriders will journey into McMahon Stadium to do battle with the slightly favoured Calgary Stampeders. But hometown advantage is almost negligible, according to Ferguson, who has noticed those wearing green nearly outnumber those in red during local clashes between the two squads.

While temperatures are expected to rise slightly in advance of Sunday's game, the forecast is only a nice indication of how many layers one needs to pull on.

Ferguson is fully prepared to pull on the wool socks, gloves and potentially even the nation's customary headgear.

"Getting your hands on a watermelon never hurts," he said. JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO

Breaking down semifinal Sunday

CFL EXTRA POINTS

East semifinal

Edmonton (7-11) at Toronto (9-9), Sunday, 11 a.m. (TSN)

Backroom intrigue is the last thing the Edmonton Eskimos need right now, but they stirred it up with the firing of GM Eric Tillman earlier this week.

Rumours persist that Tillman is now destined for Toronto and a similar role with the Argos, triggering all kinds of denials from Hogtown, where Tillman traded Esks star quarterback Ricky Ray last off-season. The swap not only created controversy in Edmonton but a huge credibility gap for the league should Tillman be reunited with Ray in T.O.

Since the crossover format's introduction in 1996, it is just the seventh time a team has headed to the other division for a CFL semifinal, and history is not on Edmonton's side. Only B.C. in 2009 advanced to the East Division final.

This Sunday's semifinal favours the Argos not only for Ray's presence at the helm, but East Division most outstanding player candidate Chad Owens will likely make an impact on special teams and offence.

To succeed, Edmonton will need a dominant performance from Fred Stamps, who recovered from an early season slump to finish second among CFL receivers.

Season series: The Esks beat the Argos both times the teams met in 2012, but much has changed since those encounters. Not only has Ray returned to all-star form, Edmonton's muddled QB situation has left everyone second-guessing whether they should start veteran Kerry Joseph or youngster Matt Nichols. Steven Jyles, acquired in the Ray swap, is an afterthought.

Pick: Toronto by 5

West semifinal

Saskatchewan (8-10) at Calgary (12-6), Sunday, 2:30 p.m. (TSN)

The Calgary Stampeders are the CFL's hottest team, but you can't help think they get a chill when pondering Sunday's opponent. Despite a four-game win streak, history suggests almost anything can happen when the Roughriders visit McMahon Stadium.

Since winning the 2008 Grey Cup, Calgary has lost two West finals to Saskatchewan and was thumped 33-19 in the West semifinal last fall in Edmonton. The Stamps have suffered playoff losses in each of their last four post-season encounters with the Riders, dating back to 2007.

Additionally, Saskatchewan minimizes Calgary's home-field advantage more than any other team as thousands of Riders fans are expected to turn up at McMahon Stadium, as usual.

The Riders locked down practice early this week, leaving media miffed and conspiracy theorists suggesting the coaching staff has cooked up something special to upset the Stamps.

The biggest shock may have come days before the opening kickoff, when the Stamps chose Drew Tate as their starting quarterback ahead of Kevin Glenn, who led the team most of the year as Tate rehabbed a shoulder injury.

Season series: The Roughriders and Stampeders met three times, with Calgary taking two of three games. The Stamps won the first two, highlighted by a stunning comeback overtime win in Week 4 that handed the Riders their first loss of the year. However, the Riders claimed the final regular-season encounter. Pick: Calgary by 2.

Lions, Als lead pack in all-star selections

The B.C. Lions and Montreal Alouettes led all CFL clubs with 10 players from each squad named to their respective division all-star team.

Travis Lulay took the honour at quarterback for the West Division while Montreal's Anthony Calvillo picked up the QB nod in the East.

The Calgary Stampeders were next in the West with eight selections, followed by the Edmonton Eskimos with six and the Saskatchewan Roughriders with three.

How hockey assists are helping turn up the Heat

Roundball revolution.
Canada's pastime has helped rev up offence of defending champs

There's nary a pair of skates visible in the Miami Heat locker-room, no bucket of pucks in the practice facility and no Zamboni following the team around, either.

Still, there's at least one hockey principle that's in the mind of the reigning NBA champions so far this season.

With emphasis on ball movement, the Heat are currently into what's known as "hockey assists" — essentially, the pass that sets up the pass that sets up the score.

In hockey, it's typical for two players to be credited with having passes to set up a goal, and while it's hardly an NBA statistic, Heat coach Erik Spoelstra is working it into his team's repertoire as well.

"If anything, it's a compliment to the game of hockey," Heat centre Joel Anthony said. "We're recognizing the different types of ways they reward players for making the extra pass. Hockey acknowledges it a lot more. There's no stat for it in basketball but we still acknowledge that."

Anthony would seem to be the resident Miami expert in this field.

After all, he's the Heat player who hails from Canada's hockey epicentre of Montreal.

"That extra pass, it means a lot for us," Anthony said.

Miami's ball movement this season is beyond statistically impressive. In their four wins so far, the Heat have 109 assists against only 43 turnovers. Even with their lone loss taken into account, the Heat assist-to-turnover ratio of 1.98-to-1 leads the NBA entering Thursday's games.

As a team, Miami reached the 25-assist mark only 12 times in 66 regular-season games last season; this year, the Heat have gotten there four times in five games.

"It's all about getting somebody the better shot," Wade said.

Take Wednesday's 103-73 win over Brooklyn as an example. LeBron James finished the game with 20 points, 12 rebounds and eight assists in only 30 minutes, getting the fourth quarter off. A triple-double was easily within reach, though with the game in hand, there was no need for the NBA's MVP to play in the final period.

While hockey assists might be one of the go-to terms for the Heat these days, it's not a new concept.

James said he began thinking about the parallel between hockey assists and smart basketball passing in high school. Chris Bosh credits Paul Hewitt — his college coach at Georgia Tech — with introducing him to the concept. Dwyane Wade had similar sentiments, saying it was a term that Tom Crean used when he was in college at Marquette. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Colts ride Luck to victory over Jaguars

NFL. QB has two rushing touchdowns as Indianapolis coasts to fourth consecutive win

The Indianapolis Colts became the latest team to hammer the Jacksonville Jaguars at home, winning 27-10 on Thursday night behind two rushing touchdowns from rookie quarterback Andrew Luck.

Darius Butler returned an interception for a score as the Colts (6-3) won their fourth consecutive game and snapped a three-game losing streak in the series. The Jaguars (1-8) have lost six straight.

The Colts had cause for concern after an emotional victory four days earlier, one in which cancer-stricken coach Chuck Pagano delivered a passionate postgame speech in the locker room. Interim coach Bruce Arians was worried the team might crash from the emotional high. Not even close.

Indianapolis scored on three consecutive possessions in the first half, opening a 17-0 lead that started emptying the stands at EverBank Field.

The Jaguars have been outscored 153-44 at home this season, on the wrong end of lopsided losses to Houston, Cincinnati, Chicago and Detroit.

Against Indy, nothing seemed to go Jacksonville's way. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscopes

Aries
March 21 - April 20
Get help from someone who is more worldly-wise than you are. You may think you can get things done alone but life will be easier if you have someone to handle negotiations and read the small print that you tend to ignore.

Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Do what you feel is right and ignore those who disagree with you. You tend to do that anyway, but today there really is no time for discussion. Follow your muse wherever it chooses to lead you.

Gemini
May 22 - June 21
The right things seem to be happening at just the right time and today's Venus-Jupiter link will certainly bring good news concerning a partnership or relationship. One-to-one relationships are under excellent stars.

Cancer
June 22 - July 23
You have never been one to put dollars and cents above other things but over the next few days you must focus more on your financial situation. Could you be earning more? Yes. Should you be spending less. Double yes.

Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Your heart will rule your head today and that will lead to some seriously fun times. Friendships and social activities must come first, at least for a while. Contacts you make now will bring long-term benefits.

Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
There are times when it all seems to come together, and this is one of them. Both at home and at work, things will fall into place with no input from you, and that's nice. All you have to do is enjoy them.

Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
This is potentially one of the best days of the year as your ruler Venus, currently in your sign, links with luck planet Jupiter. Make a wish and expect it to come true, because it most likely will. Go on, ask for something outrageous.

Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
It's time to get serious about your aims and ambitions. Something you visualize over the next few days is potentially more than just an idle daydream. Handled the right way, it could be your future – and that future is bright.

Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You may be tempted to say what you think people want to hear but that would be a mistake. The planets urge you to be honest, even if it means hurting a loved one's feelings. They'll thank you for it one day.

Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Go out of your way to be nice, even if people are not nice to you. Someone in a position of authority thinks you are ready for bigger and better things, and if your manner is positive, a promotion is likely.

Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
You may or may not be on the move over the next few days but even if you stay close to home, you will certainly be looking at the world in a different way. You have never been one to follow the herd.

Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Today's Venus-Jupiter link will emphasize the generous side of your nature, which is rarely far from the surface. Do what you can for people in need but don't bankrupt yourself in the process — that won't help them or you. SALLY BROMPTON

THE NAME OF JESUS
The crippled man at the beautiful gate expected money from Peter and John to keep body and soul together. However, his expectation was surpassed when Peter told him "I don't have any silver or gold for you. But I'll give you what I have. In the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene, get up and walk!"(Acts 3:6).The man was healed instantly. Are you suffering from any disease which perhaps you have been told is incurable? Call upon the name of Jesus today with fervency and experience the miracle of God.
